USPA NEWS - Edouard Philippe, 46, mayor of Le Havre (Right Republican), is the new Prime Minister, appointed by the President of the Republic, Emmanuel Macron on May 15, 2017. The appointment of the Prime Minister is a power of the President of the Republic according to Article 8 of the French Constitution

THE FRENCH PRESIDENT MACRON APPOINTS EDOUARD PHILIPPE PRIME MINISTER

Edouard Philippe, 46, is the new Prime Minister, who was appointed by the President of the Republic on May 15, 2017. The appointment of the Prime Minister is a power of the President of the Republic according to Article 8 of the French Constitution. The countersigning of the members of the government is therefore not necessary on the presidential decree of appointment of the head of government. The Head of State has complete freedom in his choice. Such is the case when the presidential majority coincides with the parliamentary majority. The situation is different in the case of cohabitation between a President of the Republic and a National Assembly of opposite tendency. The president is then constrained, by the unfavourable political balance of power, to appoint the personality that the new majority recognizes as the future prime minister. This is illustrated by the appointments of Jacques Chirac in 1986, Édouard Balladur in 1993 and Lionel Jospin in 1997.

EDOUARD PHILIPPE NEW PRIME MINISTER HAS NOW TO CONSTITUTE THE GOVERNMENT-----

Edouard Philippe, newly appointed Prime Minister by the President of the Republic on May 15, 2017.

He is better known to the public, as Mayor of Le Havre since 2010 and Member of Parliament for Seine-Maritime since 2012. Edouard Philippe, studied at ENA (National School of Administration, the most prestigious political school in France) as many political personalities in France, including François Hollande, Emmanuel Macron and Alain Juppé. He is a member of the party Les Républicains (French Right Party) and close to Alain Juppé (former Prime Minister) and participated in the creation of the UMP (under the presidency of Nicolas Sarkozy) in 2002. Previously at the beginning of his career, Edouard Philippe was in the Socialist Party ... Following the appointment of Edouard Philippe as Prime Minister, 32% of French people believe that the choice of Deputy Mayor LR (LR : "Les Républicains" [?]) of Le Havre is "a good thing", according to a poll released by Atlantico and Harris Interactive published Tuesday by RMC Radio . But the survey, made online on Monday with 1,011 people aged 18 and over, highlights in particular the extreme caution of the French. A majority of them, or 57%, did not pronounce themselves on the pretext that they do not know enough about Edouard Philippe. Only 11% say it is a "bad thing".

BERNARD CAZENEUVE PASSING THE POWER TO EDOUARD PHILIPPE PRIME MINISTER

Bernard Cazeneuve transferred the power to Edouard Philippe the new Prime Minister, appointed by the French President of the Republic, Emmanuel Macron, on May 15, 2017, in the heart of the Hotel de Matignon. On May 10, 2017, Prime Minister Bernard Cazeneuve handed over the resignation of his Government to the President of the Republic, François Hollande.

Nearly one-third of French people have a positive opinion on the appointment of Édouard Philippe as Prime Minister, according to a survey published Tuesday by RMC. But the vast majority do not want to vote until they know more about the new head of government. Originally scheduled for Tuesday, (Yesterday) the composition of the government of Edouard Philippe is expected to be known this Wednesday (Today afternoon, 3pm, Paris Time).
