

Beat: Lifestyle

Moroccans break Ramadan fast on beach with song, dance, food

World News

RABAT, 12.06.2018, 20:33 Time

USPA NEWS - In Morocco's capital, the beach is a favorite place during the Muslim holy month of Ramadan. Waves lap in a steady rhythm, marking time, as hundreds of Moroccans wait for sunset to break their day-long fast. Stocked with food and drinks, families and friends swarm to the beach to enjoy the Atlantic breeze and, when the fasting is declared over, share in the iftar meal.

Her face drawn from hours without food or water, Rabat resident Nadia Benani said she came with family and friends because staying at home can become tiring.

"This beach takes me down memory lane to my childhood," she said.

Some beachgoers dance and sing Moroccan music while awaiting the call for prayer that announces the end of the day's fast. Exhaustion is barely visible on their faces until they collapse on the ground and check their watches.

Then a cannon booms and a muezzin's voice rings out.

Hands reach for water and dates, an appetizer for the sumptuous dishes that follow. While some people dig into their meals, barely taking time to look up, others pray first.

Reda Fedoul, 20, and his friends built a table from sand to lay out their meals.

"We came here to change the atmosphere ... the day goes much better," he said. "We're here to create happiness."

Article online:

<https://www.uspa24.com/bericht-13606/moroccans-break-ramadan-fast-on-beach-with-song-dance-food.html>

Editorial office and responsibility:

V.i.S.d.P. & Sect. 6 MDSStV (German Interstate Media Services Agreement): AP

Exemption from liability:

The publisher shall assume no liability for the accuracy or completeness of the published report and is merely providing space for the submission of and access to third-party content. Liability for the content of a report lies solely with the author of such report. AP

Editorial program service of General News Agency:

United Press Association, Inc.
3651 Lindell Road, Suite D168

Las Vegas, NV 89103, USA
(702) 943.0321 Local
(702) 943.0233 Facsimile
info@unitedpressassociation.org
info@gna24.com
www.gna24.com