Coca cola and others gas drinks is forbidden to be sold in Albania

Children up to the age of 18 years

chicago, 20.03.2019, 20:51 Time

USPA NEWS - The biggest absurd this time has come alive in Albania when the government was unmistakably stopped bargaining for gas drinks and those with added sugar under the age of 18 and banning any advertising for these articles in any media. In this way Albania becomes the country the second after the crust that stops the giant coke cola and all the others after him selling the item under the age of 18.

In this way Albania becomes the country the second after the north korea, that stops the giant coke cola and all the others after him selling the item under the age of 18. the latest hope that business in this area is the president of the country, Mr. Meta, asking him not to approve this law without meaning for the economy of these businesses and the reduction of revenues in the Albanian state bank. This law comes after the closing of all gambling activities as well as sports lotteries online and bringing the country an unemployed of 4000 people in this business and the Albanian state draws 54million euro minus. In this street this country shows that the government is still a communist social mindset and the consequences of this 50-year totalitarian system have not been pulled out of the neopolitics minds that represent their fathers in the country's backward Europe.

whether this place has cleansed itself from street dangers, from the alarming air pollution, and left alone to analyze the amount of caffeine that the children need to consume with an added grain of up to 18 years old.
