USPA NEWS - We are pleased to announce the COP Bureau has agreed that COP25 will take place from 2-13 December in Madrid, Spain.

Statement by UN Climate Change Executive Secretary Patricia Espinosa Following yesterday's announcement, the Government of Chile, as incoming Presidency, has informed me that they received a generous offer of support from the Government of Spain to hold the United Nations Climate Change Conference (COP25) in Madrid on the same dates as originally planned. We are hopeful that the COP Bureau can consider this proposed solution as soon as possible. It is encouraging to see countries working together in the spirit of multilateralism to address climate change, the biggest challenge facing this and future generations. Source : UNFCCC

It is encouraging to see countries working together in the spirit of multilateralism to address climate change, the biggest challenge facing this and future generations. Patricia Espinosa, Executive Secretary of UN Climate Change said: "This year, we have seen accelerating climate change impacts, including increased droughts, storms and heat waves, with dire consequences for poverty eradication, human health, migration and inequality. "The world's small window of opportunity to address climate change is closing rapidly. We must urgently deploy all the tools of multilateral cooperation to make COP25 the launchpad for more climate ambition to put the world on a transformational path towards low carbon and resilience," she said.
