USPA NEWS - The excellent fourth album of Beirut, "No No No", was released today. Zach and will defend it to the AB on 14 and 15 September. Since December 2013, after hospitalised in Australia for aggravated fatigue, Zach Condon, the talented singer and composer author of Beirut is back.

ZACH CONDON WAS BORN IN SANTA FE AND PLAYS MUSIC WITH BALKAN INFLUENCES---------

"I always knew I wanted to be in a band. But growing up in Santa Fe, if I joined my friend's band, these were hardcore and punk rockers "" and I wanted to play, like, accordion and French horn and stuff," he says. "It just didn't fit. So, I was that kid. No one ever gave me grief about it, but it was a kind of lonely pursuit." Said Zach to npr's Steeve Instep.

Beirut is an American band which was originally the solo musical project of Santa Fe native Zach Condon, and later expanded into a band. Beirut's music combines elements of indie-rock and world music. The band's first performances were in New York, in May 2006, to support the release of their debut album, Gulag Orkestar.

Condon has also released an EP, Small-Time American Bats, under the name 1971. This was recorded with his friend, Alex Gaziano on guitar and vocals, when they were both around 16 years old (2002). Gaziano is a founding member of Kidcrash, another band originating from Santa Fe, New Mexico. Source: "Beirut Interview" Pitchfork, "Beirut, the band", New York Magazine, rtbe
